

Energy Policy Research Group (EPRG) and Jean Monnet Chair in Energy and Innovation

Europe's Gas Paradigm in Flux

Program

- 15:30 – 15:35 Opening remarks
- 15:35 – 15:50 Gas sector overview by András Jenei, Deputy Director CFP
Energy & Business Development Partner at River Commodity
- 15:50 – 16:40 Roundtable discussion
- Róbert Fehér, Business Development Project Manager, FGSZ
 - Michael LaBelle, Jean Monnet Chair in Energy and Innovation, and Associate Professor, CEU
 - Anita Orbán, Vice President, Tellurian
 - Katalin Tamás, Advisor to Group CEO, MET Group
 - Moderated by: John Szabó, CEU PhD & HAS
- 16:40 – 17:10 Q & A Session
- 17:10 Reception

Date and Time: 16 May 2018, 15:30-17:10

Venue: CEU Nádor 15, Auditorium

Please register here.

Live stream will be available here.

Pipeline gas has long dominated the European gas sector. Nonetheless, LNG may threaten this dominance. Global LNG capacity continues to expand, and notably from the US. How will this new dynamic impact traditional buyers of Russian gas? Will LNG just be a form of insurance against Russian supply disruptions and Gazprom dominance? This roundtable sets out to address the impact of LNG and pipeline gas in Europe and more specifically in Central Europe.